

POLE SUPPORTED
TECHNOLOGY

The paltry weight and minimal pack size makes the Hunker™ 2P perfect for a day hike where unexpected weather can roll in, or you can add it to your backpacking kit and pitch it as an open air shelter, gear shed or shade space. Versatile, packable and easy to set up as a pyramid or lean to, you can also connect Hunker™ to your primary tent to extend the usable square footage.

HUNKER™ HIGHLIGHTS

Hunker™ can be setup in two configurations: either as a lean to using a tree or in a pyramidal shape.

For extra protection from the elements deploy the rain flap.

HUNKER™ SETUP

1. Attach anchor point with red webbing to tree at a height of about 30" or stake to ground.

2. Lightly tension and stake out the two side anchors.

3. Extend trekking pole into center pole pocket until front and side anchors are tensioned.

4. Secure rear anchor and adjust side anchors if needed.

5. Stake anchor on gray rain flay for additional coverage (optional). Roll up and secure with snap if not needed.

1 Connect Front Anchor

Depending on your configuration, either connect the front (red) anchor to a tree about 30" high or stake it directly to the ground.

2 Stake Side Anchors

Loosely tension both side anchors to make a triangle of fabric, and stake in place. Make sure not to over-tension these corners—more tension can be added at the end of setup.

3 Insert Trekking Pole

Slide the handle of the trekking pole into the reinforced pocket at the top of Hunker™ 2P. Extend the trekking pole until the front two panels are completely tensioned.

4 Stake Rear Anchor

Stake the rear anchor creating a full volume shelter and adjust cord at all anchors so there is even tension over the entire Hunker™ 2P.

5 Deploy Rain Flap

For extra rain and wind protection, stake the guy line for the grey Rain Flap. When not in use, you can save a stake point and stow the Rain Flap with snap closure.
